Art Unit: 2614

1. Applicant's response is not fully responsive because the amendment is not in compliance with rule 119(b). This rule states the following: "The reply [by an applicant] must present arguments pointing out the specific distinctions believed to render the claims, including any newly presented claims, patentable over any applied references."

Instead of pointing out any supposed specific distinctions recited in the new claims, applicant gives a blanket statement, saying that the additional claims were submitted "for purposes of clarity", which stated purpose itself is not clear and not in compliance with rule 119(b).

Instead of the Office responding with a "non-responsive" action, the examiner has addressed the amended and additional claims in an effort to advance prosecution.

2. Applicant's arguments filed on 10/06/03 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The previous rejection of claims 1-3 accordingly still apply, repeated below from the last Office action, applicant's arguments addressed in the context of the rejection.

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1 and 2 stand rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Nayebi et al.

Art Unit: 2614

Nayebi (Fig. 6) enables high-speed mixing (col. 11 line 65 – col. 12 line 2) of graphics (e.g. OSD) with video, the controller of which being shown in Fig. 4 (detailed in Fig. 5). Nayebi includes first and second differential pairs Q10 with Q20 and Q30 with Q40, where composite video signal input CV is applied to one input of the first differential pair by way of differential amplifier 60, and the same differential pair has biasing voltage from Vcc (not specified as biasing but functioning as such, as shown by Komori in Fig. 3 and col. 4 line 59 – col. 5 line 2, for example. Komori is not combined with Nayebi in the rejection but cited for evidence to matter). The output includes the video signal output by the differential pair as well as a subsequent amplified version carried out by driver 66.

Applicant argues the plural signals applied to both differential pairs of Nayebi, but because applicant's claim 1 only recites one differential pair and its signals, the examiner accordingly only addressed the one of Nayebi relevant to what the claim recites (the other differential pair mentioned in passing, as it is part of the overall circuit arrangement).

Applicant further argues the type of signal applied to both differential pairs, but again that is not relevant because only one such pair is claimed, and only a "video signal" is recited as being an input thereto. Regardless of the input of Nayebi being a composite video signal, it is still a video signal. Applicant persists in arguing an extent of Nayebi beyond what is relevant to the claimed subject matter.

Applicant also argues that amplifier acts only on the single output signal because two separate signals are not generated by either differential pair. This is not disputed by the examiner. However, the claim language is met because the claim only recites a first output corresponding to the [said] video signal (which is met as shown in the circuit), and a second output signal amplifying the [said] video signal is met by the subsequent transformation of the first due to the gain by the amplifier to which it is sent. There is no specific language requiring distinct separate first and second signals that may be separately processed simultaneously or not.

Because applicant does not argue claim 2 separately but relies on his arguments to claim 1, claim 2 accordingly stands rejected as previously applied, repeated as follows.

The output signal of the Gilbert cell includes further biasing, as shown in Fig. 6, thereby meeting claim 2.

Applicant likewise fails to separately argue the rejection of claim 3, instead relying on his arguments regarding base claim 1. The brief refutation that Nayebi does not disclose or suggest the limitations recited therein does not adequately counter the rejection or the reasons for obviousness given. Claim 3 therefore also stands rejected as previously presented in the last Office action, repeated as follows.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 3 stands rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nayebi et al.

It would have been obvious to account for inherent negative traits characteristic of transistors, such as run-away, breakdown, or saturation swings. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to incorporate suitable measures to prevent such problems, such as by biasing or clamping specific connection points, as is well known.

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The additional references all teach in some manner differential pair arrangements the include various biasing and clamping.

5. Claims 4-12 appear allowable over the prior art.

6. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.

REMINDER

Drawing changes may also require changes in the specification, e.g., if Fig. I is changed to Fig. IA, Fig. IB, Fig. IC, etc., the specification, at the Brief Description of the Drawings, must likewise be changed. Please make such changes by 37 CFR 1.312 Amendment at the time of submitting drawing changes.

INFORMATION ON HOW TO EFFECT DRAWING CHANGES

1. Correction of Informalities--37 CFR 1.85

File new drawings with the changes incorporated therein. The application number or the title of the invention, inventor's name, docket number (if any), and the name and telephone number of a person to call if the Office is unable to match the drawings to the proper application, should be placed on the back of each sheet of drawings in accordance with 37 CFR 1.84(c). Applicant may delay filing of the new drawings until receipt of the Notice of Allowability (PTOL-37). Extensions of time may be obtained under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136. The drawing should be filed as a separate paper with a transmittal letter addressed to the Drawing Review Branch.

2. Timing of Corrections

Applicant is required to submit acceptable corrected drawings within the three-month shortened statutory period set in the Notice of Allowability (PTOL-37). If a correction is determined to be unacceptable by the Office, applicant must arrange to have acceptable correction resubmitted within the original three-month period to avoid the necessity of obtaining as extension of time and paying the extension fee. Therefore, applicant should file corrected drawings as soon as possible.

Failure to take corrective action within set (or extended) period will result in ABANDONMENT of the Application.

3. Corrections other than Informalities Noted by the Drawing Review Branch on the Form PTO 948

All changes to the drawings, other than informalities noted by the Drawing Review Branch, MUST be approved by the examiner before the application will be allowed. No changes will be permitted to be made, other than correction of informalities, unless the examiner has approved the proposed changes.
